

TRUST YOUR STYLE

Thursday, January 18, 2007

HOLIDAY IN BED

The Hollandia bed, now available in the U.S.

With pajamas on my mind, it only seemed fitting to segue right into a bed fit for high design-lovers. Depending on the situation, the right bed can be a very romantic gift. With prices ranging from $10,000 to $50,000 you'll move seamlessly from being a fling into being a thing. The Trust Your Style Valentine Countdown Pick for the day is the bed "beyond rest": a state-of-the-art Hollandia bed.

Hollandia beds have a programmable massage system with 12 distinct settings, four whisper-quiet motors that smoothly adjust the head and feet of either side of the bed into just the right positions without disturbing anyone else in the bed, a glow-in-the-dark, ergonomic hand control for easy operation even when the lights are out, two built-in 200-watt speakers that connect to any sound system or computer, including iPods. Plus they come with a seasonal mattress that's soft on one side for a more embracing sleep in the winter, and firm on the other for a cooler more refreshing summer sleep.

The Hollandia bed comes in all standard bed sizes, and is also available as a futon, daybed, or fold-out ottoman. For more information call 215-988-9707 or mail@hollandiaus.com.

posted by Mary Jo Matsumoto @ 3:48 PM