

NOVEMBER 10, 2007

📺 Would You Pay $35000 For A Bed? What If It Included A Sony Bravia Home Theater System?

Introducing the Platinum-Luxe Elite sleep system from Hollandia International, or as it's probably more popularly known, the $35000 bed. Yes, that's right, this bed costs only $35000. We won't discuss the benefits of the mattress here, other than it's apparently very soft and comfortable, but we will mention the two individual 13-inch back-sliding supports and telescopic headrests which allow you to find the perfect reclining position. And the reason that optimal lean-back-and-relax spot is needed? You need to be comfortable for all those hours you spend watching the Sony Bravia 32" LCD built-in to the bed. It also includes the better parts of an entire home theater setup, with a five DVD/CD changer, a five speaker surround sound system, a subwoofer beneath the bed and an iPod docking station. It wouldn't surprise me if those than can afford this somewhat expensive bed now are the unemployed paupers of the world in the future. I mean, would you bother getting out of bed and going to work?

Via Inventor Spot