There's no better way to nest than to cuddle up in front of a Bang & Olufsen BeoVision 7, the premier 40-inch LCD screen that arrived in North America this summer. A complete home theater system, the BeoVision includes an integrated DVD player, digital surround-sound module, center channel speaker and high-definition video display. All that and sleek styling, too. The price, $13,250, includes a remote control that can operate all Bang & Olufsen audio and video products, as well as non-Bang & Olufsen products. It's available at the Bang & Olufsen showroom in Wayne, Pa.

If you're turning a college student's room into a combination guest room/study, consider a tidy ottoman that unfolds into a bed. The piece, made by Hollandia, boasts the Talalay latex mattress, which relieves pressure on the body. The ottoman retails for $89999, and is available at Hollandia's store in King of Prussia, one of its two U.S. stores. (The other is in Center City, Philadelphia.)

Beauty and function are wedded in the latest gotta-have-it products

Stark white and light fabrics are fine for summer. Come cooler weather, warm colors and textures are more pleasing – and practical. Consider Hunter Douglas wood blinds. Or, update your windows with the rich palette of Hunter Douglas Vignette Modern Roman Shades, whose top-down/bottom-up design lets you control light, privacy and views. Other tips from Sally Morse, director of creative services for Hunter Douglas: Place a wicker basket with moss balls, hedge apples, gourds or rattan-covered balls near a fireplace or entry; add textured rugs; and place a comfy throw on the sofa. For a list of Hunter Douglas dealers, visit www.hunterdouglas.com.

Dramatic animal skin patterns and textures are roaring back into the spotlight this fall, says Jan Jessup, spokeswoman for Calico Corners. "They are popular throughout the home-furnishings industry at every level of design – in prints, in silky jacquards and in heavy textured chenille," she says. Animal prints fit into nearly every home décor. Calico Corners offers the Darin's Chair, which is custom-upholstered in the Bangal pattern. (The color is mahogany.) The price is $1,193, including delivery.

Calico Corners has stores in Wilmington and Frazer and Strafford, Pa. There is an outlet store in Newark. For a free catalog, go to www.calicocorners.com or call (800) 213-6366.
